THE TREASURER'S TAKE

What do Starbucks' selling Frappucinos, the introduction of the George Forman Grill, the start of Match.com, eBay going live, and the College of Labor and Employment Lawyers all have in common?

They all had their start 20 years ago! Incorporated in the fall of 1995, one hundred twenty-five of the premiere labor and employment attorneys in the country were inducted as the first class of Fellows of the College of Labor and Employment Lawyers in August 1996 at a dinner in Orlando, Florida. We've come a long way since then. When we gather in Philadelphia in November 2015, we will be welcoming 72 new Fellows, bringing the total number of Fellows to 1,362, all of whom exhibit the highest standards of professionalism and achievement.

Twenty years has a special meaning within the College. It is the minimum number of years of practice needed to qualify for admission. Just think, the College has now been around long enough that attorneys just starting their careers in 1995 are now eligible to be nominated for membership.

The College is a dynamic group and brings in new members each year. Although we have not even inducted our newest Fellows yet, it is not too early to nominate candidates for the Class of 2016. The College depends on you to identify and nominate new members. One of the attributes of the College, which adds to its richness, is that Fellows are the best-of-the-best from all constituencies in the field of Labor and Employment Law: management; unions; employees; neutrals; law professors; and government officials. We also benefit from members in various stages of their careers, including those just starting out when the College began 20 years ago. These are the people who will help move the College forward as we enter our next decade. The application deadline is Monday, February 1, 2016. Applications can be found on the College website by clicking here. We hope you will consider nominating a highly deserving labor and employment practitioner for the Class of 2016. In the meantime, I look forward to seeing many of you in Philadelphia and celebrating with the Class of 2015!

JUSTICE RUTH BADER GINSBURG VIDEOTAPED FOR COLLEGE'S VHP

September was a busy month for VHP producer/director Carol M. Rosenbaum. Three new interviews were completed for the College's historical library of labor and employment law icons. Supreme Court Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg, former EEOC Chair Bill Brown and Judge Laurence Silberman (US Court of Appeals for the DC Circuit) were recorded. Justice Ginsburg's two hour interview focused on her role as the "Architect" of 1970's women's rights litigation during her tenure as chair of the ACLU Project on Women's Rights and her opinions and dissents in major civil rights and employment law cases involving the Equal Protection Clause and Title VII. As a former Solicitor and Under Secretary for the Department of Labor, Judge Silberman's interview covered his role as the moving force behind the revised "Philadelphia Plan." Both were interviewed by Fellow Bill Kilberg. Former EEOC Chair Bill Brown (1969-73), who was also interviewed in September, focused his discussion on the acquisition of enforcement authority that occurred during his tenure, the impact on state and local agencies' employees, and obstacles he faced with the new authority. All three interviews will be featured on the College website and available through The Kheel Center for Labor-Management Documentation & Archives at Cornell University.

2015 WRITING COMPETITION WINNER

Congratulations to Stephanie Richards, this year's winner of the College of Labor and Employment Lawyers and the ABA Section of Labor and Employment Law Student Writing Competition. A distinguished panel of attorneys from around the country reviewed papers on current and relevant topics of labor and employment law.

Ms. Richards (photo right) holds a B.A., magna cum laude in History from Whitworth University in Spokane, Washington, where she lives with her husband, Steve. Her paper is titled "Screening for Integrity: What's Missing From Integrity Staffing Solutions, Inc. v. Busk". Prior to law school, Ms. Richards' experience included thirteen years in the health insurance industry with a focus on large group sales, self-insured medical plans, provider network contracting, and utilization review.

As a member of Gonzaga Law's inaugural accelerated class, Ms. Richards will complete her 90-credit J.D. in only two years, graduating in May, 2016. She is an associate editor of the Gonzaga Law Review and last summer, completed an externship with Chief Judge Rosanna Peterson of the District Court for the Eastern District of Washington. Ms. Richards is interested in public service, and perhaps working for a local government entity after graduation.

LESSONS FROM OUR NORTHERN NEIGHBORS:

Civility & Professionalism

in the Practice of Canadian Labor and Employment Law
Saturday, November 7, 2015 - 12:30 to 2:00 p.m.

All dispute resolution systems, including both private arbitration forums and the public courts, are based upon the premise that the parties participating in any particular matter should act in a civil manner in order to reach a fair and just disposition. In this moderated panel discussion of civility and professionalism in Canadian courts and arbitration forums, you will learn that the Canadian national tendency to talk things out with reasonable politeness (which has permitted Canada to build an enviable nation of competing regional and cultural interests with a minimum of rancor) is also reflected in the civility and professionalism exhibited in its courts and arbitration forums. While rare instances of notably uncivil and unprofessional behavior do occur, Canadian labor and employment lawyers are well-known to adhere to principles of civility and professionalism that should be the envy of their American counterparts. In a fun-filled and educational multi-media presentation, the eminent Canadian practitioners and neutrals (and College Fellows) on the panel, Toronto arbitrator James Hayes, management attorney Danny Kaufer (Quebec), union attorney Ron Pink (Halifax, Nova Scotia) and management attorney and neutral Frederick von Veh (Toronto), will reveal how Canadian lawyers promote public confidence in the legal system by employing representational tactics that are legal, honest and respectful, acting with integrity and professionalism, and taking the time to fully educate their clients regarding the advantages of dealing with opponents in a civil manner.

Please join us on Saturday, November 7th from 12:30 to 2:00 p.m. at the Loews Philadelphia Hotel, 1200 Market Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.
